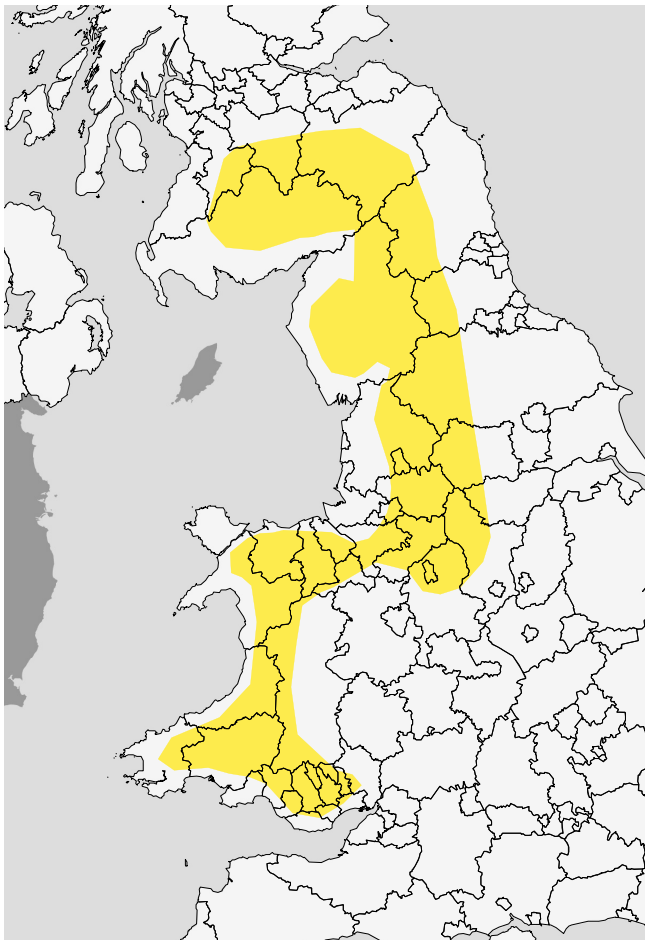
Yellow warning
Ice

Between
21:00 Fri 16 Dec 2022 and
10:30 Sat 17 Dec 2022



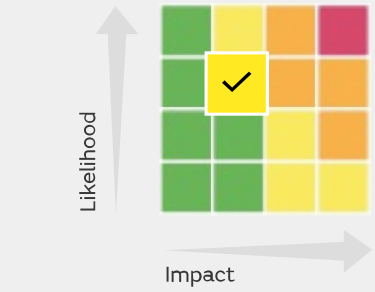
Showery rain and sleet, with snow over some hills, will lead to an ice risk tonight, and possible travel disruption.

What to expect

- Probably some icy patches on some untreated roads, pavements and cycle paths, leading to increased chance of accidents and injuries
- A few higher level routes seeing snowfall, making for longer journey times

Further details

Bands of showery rain are expected run inland tonight, turning to sleet and snow over some of the higher ground. Surfaces are very cold at present, posing the possibility of ice in some areas, the likelihood of this perhaps increased in places by "wash-off" of road grit or salt. Above 200 to 300 metres elevation some snowfall is likely, with a few cm over some trans-Pennine routes.



✓ Medium likelihood of low impacts
